

The places that it is readily available from do they have disclaimer requirements like what [REDACTED] hit us with on the Pento?

Hello [REDACTED]

That stuff is readily available along with potassium chloride. I reviewed several protocols from states that currently use that method. Most have a 3 drug protocol including a paralytic and potassium chloride. Here is my concern with Midazolam. Being a benzodiazepine, it does not elicit strong analgesic effects. The subjects may be able to feel pain from the administration of the second and third drugs. Potassium chloride especially. It may not be a huge concern but can open the door to some scrutiny on your end. Consider the use of an alternative like Ketamine or use in conjunction with an opioid. Availability of the paralytic agent is spotty. Pancuronium, Rocuronium, and Vecuronium are currently unavailable. Succinylcholine is available in limited quantity. I'm currently checking other sources. I'll let you know shortly.

Regards,

The good thing about the multi-drug protocol is that it uses product that is commercially produced in high quantities that we can get overnight. The shelf life is usually around 2 years.

Vecuronium is available through another source along with Succinylcholine. Not available in huge bulk amounts but enough.
